CAPITAL GOSSIP AND PROVINCIAL NEWS

Considerable success attended the series of poultry meetings which were held in the southern part of the province, under the auspices of the department of agriculture. Lecturers report that never before have the farmers taken such a keen interest in the poultry industry.

A bulletin will shortly be ready for distribution by the department of agriculture on "Building up a Dairy Herd." The bulletin on silos is now ready for distribution.

It has been announced by Attorney General Brownlee that Sgt. J. J. Nicholson, of the Provincial Police formerly stationed at Blairmore, has been appointed to take charge of the police under The Liquor Act, under the general direction of Commissioner Cuddy. Announcement will shortly be made also of the appointment of a man to have charge of the administration of the Act, under the direction of the Attorney General.

A delegation representing the Moderation League of the Province waited on the cabinet on Wednesday with the request for moderation of the prohibition laws.

A delegation from sportsmen of the province has presented a request to the Minister of Agriculture to have the seasons for prairie chickens and Hungarian partridge open simultaneously on October 1, and that the partridge season be open until the end of October.

A delegation which waited upon Perrin Baker, Minister of Education, Thursday, asked for consideration for the adult blind in the province, of whom it was stated there were 275 now in Alberta. The delegation urged the government to provide a grant to the provincial branch of the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

Rapid growth of school districts in the province is shown by the fact that the Minister of Education during the past week signed order for the organization of District No. 4091.

Figures and statements contained in the annual report of the department of municipal affairs of the provincial government show the phenomenal growth of that department in the past ten years. This report was tabled in the legislature Thursday afternoon by Hon. R. G. Reid, Minister of Health and Municipal Affairs.

In 1912 the acts under the jurisdiction of the department numbered only four, while in 1921 the department had the administration of no less than 19 acts, besides certain work conducted with respect to other acts.

A comparison of the number of municipalities in 1912 and 1921 is as follows:

	1912	1921
Cities	5	6
Towns	26	54
Villages	73	119
Municipal Districts	55	167
Improvement Districts	90	215

Revenue:

1912	$ 294,199.36
1914 ... (estimated)	110,000.00
1921	2,571,000.00

Reference is made in the report to the excellent work done by H. M. Martin, commissioner regarding subdivided properties, in adjusting difficulties arising out of subdivisions which have not been able to bear the burden of taxes levied upon them. Mr. Martin has considered applications from the municipalities of Athabasca, Grumont, Hardisty, Castor, Munson, Claresholm, Woodford, Macleod, Clear Lake, Parkland S. D., Red Deer, Pine Lake.

The report also contains a summary of the work done by the municipal finances commission, which includes Chief Justice Harvey, Justices Beck and Hyndman, and H. M. E. Evans. This commission has been considering the financial condition of town and S. D. of Beverly, Town of Macleod, Village and S. D. of Holden, Tofield, Athabasca, Bassano, Redcliff, Wainwright, Wetsaskiwin, in several cases the programmes for the year for the places involved were passed upon by the commission.

The report also contains detailed statements of the assessment and taxes collected in the towns and municipal districts.

A total of 7,069 accidents came under the purview of the Workmen's Compensation Board of the Province during the year 1921, according to statistics contained in the annual report of the board tabled in the legislature by Premier Greenfield yesterday afternoon. The number of accidents for the past three years was:

1921	7,069
1919	3,466

Fatal accidents last year totalled 55, as against 81 in 1920 and 43 in 1919. The total compensation and medical services paid for during the year was $367,102.17, compared with $243,935.84 in 1920 and $104,739.18 in 1919.

The average rate of assessment paid by the employers in all industries was 93 per cent. on the gross payroll of 1921.

The average compensation and medical aid per accident was $102.93, of which $71.13 was for compensation and $31.80 for medical aid.

Females injured in the accidents reported, totalled only .69 of the total number.

During the year 277 prosecutions were taken under the act in which 261 convictions were obtained.

A great deal of work was accomplished during the year in the way of propaganda for accident prevention and first aid work. It is also pointed out in the report that eye accidents were numerous, and as a result safety goggles on heavy wheels and such like have been installed. Further regulation for the public in theatres, and for stage hands and motion picture operators have also been inaugurated during the year.

Classes were held at many points during the year in first aid work, 25 of these having been completed, and 8 of which are still to be completed. The candidates attending these classes totalled 624 males and 186 females while 419 males have qualified in the various examinations and 29 females have qualified.

Announcement is made by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, of the intention to close two or three of the demonstration farms, retaining only sufficient area in these for experimental plots. This is in line with the policy of the Minister of Agriculture to extend the system of district agricultural agents, who will visit the farmers on their own farms and give them practical advice on the problems they face.

The provincial seed fair held in Edmonton the past week was the most successful in many years. The exhibits numbered nearly 700, and were of the finest quality. In spite of supposedly adverse conditions in the country districts. Many of the first prize exhibits have been given by the owners to the provincial government for exhibition purposes in future.

There were 1106 students registered at the University of Alberta during 1921 according to the annual report of the governors of the university laid on the table of the legislature last week by Hon. Perrin Baker, Minister of Education. These distributed in the various schools and faculties as follows:

Arts and sciences 383, applied science 67, law 75, medicine 141, agriculture 47, professional short course in dairying 30, agriculture for S. C. R. 11, pharmacy 43, dentistry 40, correspondence 40, graduate courses 73, combined courses B.A., LL.B. 68, B.A., M.D., 23, B.A., B.Sc. in arts 1, B.A., B.Sc. in applied science 19, B.A., B.S., 3, Public Health Nurses 15, Household Economics 24.

According to nationality, the registrants are divided as follows: British 813 of which 634 are Canadians, and 179 in Alberta; United States 148, other countries 47, not mentioned 98. During the year two scholarships were given to the University of $150 each, one by a returned soldier of Calgary and the other by P. Burns. Arrangements were also completed with the Rockefeller foundation by which a gift of $25,000 was secured for the faculty of medicine.

At the annual convention of the provincial fairs association held last week in Edmonton, J. F. Day was elected president again, and Rufus Cates, Owen, vice-president. E. J. Francis, who for 27 years has been secretary, has resigned, and Alex. Galbraith, Superintendent of Fairs, has taken over the work temporarily. There will be 112 fairs in the province this year, compared with 108 in 1921. Two of them will be in June, 18 in July, 71 in August and 13 in September.

During a discussion of grants to fairs Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, urged the importance of giving prizes only on merit, pointing out the harm done by practice of directors and others in allowing prizes to be given animals or exhibits without real merit, or where there was only one entry. This year he stated, the grants to fairs would be about $155,000. The question was to get value for the money spent, and as to how many fairs were justified by the good they were doing and he would rather see money diverted from a poor fair to help out some school fair.

Strong appeal was made by some delegates, however, to give every possible chance to the small fairs to make good. "The agricultural fair puts the stamp on exhibits, and that stamp should be for merit and for no other reason," declared Mr. Hoadley.

An excellent address on plowing matches was given the convention by Prof. Smith, and Mr. H. A. Craig, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, promised to have the address printed in bulletin form for distribution.

F. S. Grisdale addressed the convention on the agricultural schools, and John Wilson of Innisfail spoke on shipment of cattle to Britain, declaring that shipment of chilled beef had been found to be unprofitable. Mrs. Armour of Chauvin spoke on agriculture in the schools, expressing opposition to adding this subject to the curriculum.

H. A. Craig, during a discussion on co-operation between agricultural fairs and school fairs, urged that any antagonism between the two be eliminated.

Another successful convention of the Alberta Dairymen's Association in conjunction with the provincial department of agriculture passed into history last week. The convention was featured by some very practical talks along the lines of increasing the standard of the Alberta butter and meeting competition of New Zealand and Australia. During the convention D'Arcy Scott, of the national dairy council, told of his efforts to secure reciprocity between Canada and the United States with respect to duty on butter.

The convention passed a resolution asking that freight rates be lowered and also that the Dominion government take action to develop markets for dairy products.

Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, during the convention, took occasion to outline amendments to the "Cow Bill" which will provide that purchasers of cows under the terms of the bill will now have to bear one-quarter of the initial cost, thus giving them a stake in the cows from the start. Mr. Hoadley urged the convention to make haste slowly in considering any move to do away with cream stations in the province, and he further urged the importance of diversified farming.

C. E. Christensen, predicted that Alberta would increase its output 100 per cent. in two years and expected an output of 18 million pounds of butter during the coming year. He urged the importance of improving the grade of butter.

C. P. Marker, dairy commissioner urged more co-operation between manufacturer and producer. He pointed out that the grade of butter was decreasing in the province, and concerted action was needed to improve the standard. He stated that the value of dairy products in the province in 1920 had been 34 millions while in 1921 had been only 25 millions, due in a large measure to the drop in prices of cream.

Among others who addressed the convention were H. A. Craig, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Nelson Smith M.L.A. of Olds, who spoke on building up the dairy herd, Geo. Hutton who advocated the trench silo and spoke of experiments with silage, Geo. Barr who pointed out that Manitoba and Quebec were taking laudable away from Alberta in dairy production. Dr. Hilton, of the Dominion government who gave an interesting address on the value of the tuberculin test, declaring that 50 per cent of tuberculosis in human beings developed from tuberculosis in milk. Dean Howe of Alberta University on the History of Agriculture, and Miss Campbell of Ottawa, who spoke on sanitation in milk. The annual prize for butter was won by O. Severen of Calgary, with J. P. Donald, Wetsaskiwin, second; C. E. Christensen, Edmonton third, and W. Hansen, Lacombe fourth.

Auto Accidents.

Men are making war on gunning and on fights on land and sea; but with careless autos running, why cut off artillery? Jolly cars kill folks by dozens, slicing off their legs and arms, maiming infants, aunts and cousins, as in times of war's alarms. People now move far more spryly than before the auto came; but it slips upon the sly, that is how it wins the game. States record these killings vainly, and they warn the man who drives; but one fact is noted plainly, 'tis the dodger who survives! Every year the list increases till it fills our hearts with pain. We must take the fliv to pieces and bring Dobbin back again! We've made germs by thousands scatter, we have put the flue to rout; as a race were growing fatter and our lungs and legs are stout. But what boots it that we've fattened and what boots our wealth or wit, when we're likely to be flattened flat as pancakes by a jit? They are quick and they are cruel, swooping down with wild delight; though you eat your morning meal, they may get you 'ere the night! Yes, statistics prove them fatal; but what can a fellow do? Shall we seek the British Natal chumming with the kangaroo? And, in fleeing from Fierce-Sparrows to this far, secluded spot, won't the natives' poisoned arrows still harass him, like as not? Things are all the more distressing for precautions are in vain; but if you've engagements pressing, do not take the street called Main. Choose an alley, dark and grimy, where no car can make its way; though the path you take is slimy, you may still enjoy the day. Yes, statistics show ## the dangers that beset us without end, hope and safety are but strangers with the auto 'round the bend.

COMING EVENTS FORESHADOWED

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

The R. C. Ladies' Aid will hold a sale of work and tea in the afternoon and a dance in the evening on March 17th in the Town Hall. 51-1t

THE EMPTY SLEEVE.

Lend you a hand—my Lady—There: How I wish I could give you two— But the Boche decided I'd one to spare— And left me but this for you:

Where did I lose my arm? Oh, Well; We were ordered across the Aisne— "Nobody's Own"—and we went to Hell. Then they ordered us back again.

Sappers toiled, with only a thought For the work one bade them do: Roared the guns—yet the flood they fought,

When their bridge was sliced in two Leaders fell—yet the men toiled on— Stemming the stream, that our troop might cross;

Wrecking the bridge, after all had gone, 'Ere pausing to count their loss.

Slow we rode—for the way was blocked— Horse and foot—and a gun between. Our damned gun, with its breech-piece blocked,

Always I hated that foul machine. Roared the guns on the further ridge, Shrapnel flogged us in dull retreat, Rained the shell on the shivering bridge, Pontons sank 'neath our horses' feet. Halt was called on the further side— Formed was our line anew— Hotly our guns to their guns replied— Screeching the splinters flew.

So we stood who recrossed the Aisne— Jest—before our line— One of us fell. He was raised again With a severed arm—"Twas mine.

Home—in the combats of long ago— Home, charged 'Ours,' with a sleeve slung free; Right arms bared, for the sabre's blow One sleeve just as you see me.

Mine now brings them 'before my sight— Fills my eyes with the glory won By 'Ours,' in leaguer or open fight, Though my battle days are done.

What, do you ask, means this copper cross? In danger was it a charm Ah, no! my Lady—it pays the loss, Right well, of a good right arm.

Loop my sleeve on its button. Thanks, My cavalry sword hangs over my bed—

'Nobody's Own' must be cast for Tanks, Disbanded.... The Regiment's dead —Charles Darling.

E. Sparks, member for Wetsaskiwin, during the week introduced a resolution urging the Dominion government to make a re-evaluation of farm stock and equipment held by soldiers on land under the soldiers' settlement board, and that indebtedness of the soldier to the board be fixed on the new basis, but this resolution was later withdrawn.

On Monday, February 20, Alex. Moore and J. R. Love, introduced a resolution to the effect that the Premier should not consider the defeat of the government on any government measure or motion, a sufficient reason for resignation, save where followed by a vote

Never in the history of silent drama has there been a player whose dramatic ability has caused such widespread comment and admiration as the popular Japanese-American star, Sessue Hayakawa, whose most recent production "Where Lights Are Low" will be screened at the Empress Theatre beginning Monday.

As a student of the drama from the time he was a young man in Japan until he graduated from the University of Chicago, he has followed the teachings and work of the speaking stage's greatest exponents and has become during the last two years one of the most finished screen actors in the world.

"Where Lights Are Low" is an R-C Pictures production and nothing has been spared in the way of money and labor to make it the very best vehicle in which the famous star has ever appeared. It was based upon the story "East is East" from the facile pen of Lloyd Osborne, who learned the technique of story writing when a young man from his famous step-father, Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Where Lights Are Low" unfolds a story of great dramatic power and gives Mr. Hayakawa just the sort of role to which he can devote his whole being. He interprets the part of a young Japanese prince about whose love affairs and adventures a most engrossing tale has been fashioned. It is filled with intensely dramatic moments and leavened by a touch of romance that is a sheer delight.

During the coming season Mr. Hayakawa will release through R-C Pictures Corporation the great productions of his career. The stories in which he will appear have been selected with the utmost care not only with regard to the parts available for Mr. Hayakawa but also with respect to plot and heart interest.

"THE UNLOVED WIFE"

Here is a play that is rich in humor, spiced with sentiment, bubbling with amiable philosophy and fragrant with charm. It is delightfully written and just as delightfully acted. For "The Unloved Wife," a new play in three acts, which comes to the Empress Theatre Monday, March 6th, is a modern version of woman and superwoman. We trust these comments will convey the impression that "The Unloved Wife" is a radiant success. Its story unfolds: How much deception should a woman tolerate on the part of her husband? Is more than sufficiently novel, and the development of the plot a sheer delight. The production is even more effective than "East Lynne," "Camille," "Dy Barry" or "The Easiest Way."

The Truth, the Whole Truth and "Nothing But The Truth."

HAYAKAWA PICTURE IS IN A CLASS BY ITSELF

At the Empress Monday and Tuesday. For logic and novelty of plot, for lavishness of scenery and fidelity to detail, Sessue Hayakawa's latest R-C Pictures vehicle "Where Lights Are Low" is almost in a class by itself. The acting of Mr. Hayakawa, greatest of all dramatic artists, the story by Lloyd Osborne, step-son of Robert Louis Stevenson and the skillful direction by Colin Campbell combine to make of this most recent R-C release one of the most finished productions of the year.

Hayakawa portrays the role of a young Oriental prince whose love for the daughter of a gardener on his illustrious uncle's estate causes the complications upon which the play is built. His uncle insists that he wed the daughter of a wealthy mandarin but the princeling refuses and goes to America to acquire education and culture. Later the little daughter of the gardener is brought to America by slave dealers and the efforts of the young prince to win her back form the groundwork of a drama of the most gripping nature.

"THE UNLOVED WIFE"

Almost every man believes he might have married a great many women. In his heart of hearts he has an idea that almost every woman who ever smiled upon him, or blinked an interested eyelash at him, would only too gladly have become his wife. And when married, what then? In "The Unloved Wife," the new dramatic success in three acts, which comes to the Empress Theatre Monday, March 6th, Florence Edna May, the authoress, chooses the woman's side of the story. Too long has the finger of scorn been pointed at the helpless weaker sex. But are women the weaker sex? Are they not the stronger sex? What makes a man different after he's married? What causes every married woman, at some time, to think she is unloved? A woman is a woman, and really to know her fads and fancies a man must have been married to her. And then—does he know her? Many of these questions are entertainingly answered in the play, "The Unloved Wife."

Mrs. J. Horner is in town, the guest of Mrs. J. Toogood.

Mr. W. H. Shield, M.L.A., spent the week-end at the ranch, returning north on Monday.

Crops of other kinds may vary from year to year but the infantile crop keeps up to the same old average.

Don't forget the U.F.A. monthly meeting to be held on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the irrigation office. Members earnestly requested to be present.

Mr. A. V. Harris, who has made Bowden his home for nearly a year, has returned to Macleod, bringing his cattle with him. His son Graham accompanied him. Welcome!

Mr. W. Wood, of McBride Lake, is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. D. L. Mudiman, for a week. Albert Mudiman is looking after Mr. Wood's stock interests in the meantime.

Miss Janet White has accepted a position in a Calgary musical store, leaving Wednesday of this week for her new home, to be absent at least some months. Miss White will be greatly missed in musical circles both here and in town.

Quite a number of new pupils will make their bow to Harold McCrea, the teacher as soon as spring fairly opens up. Billy Marlowe had his young hopeful out on Friday to take a look at the teacher. It seemed to be a case of love at first sight on the part of both.

The suggestion that the bachelors should do the cooking for the dances and relieve the hard-working but very efficient lady cooks, did not meet with the ready response it was hoped for. One or two of the bachelors got quite warm under the collar for a time, but their normal temperature has, however, been regained. Jim Gemil took it in good part saying that if anyone was so foolish as to partake of his cooking they would—and he stopped there. We infer that those who did would probably die. At least that is the construction your correspondent put upon it.

The U.F.A. concert and dance was a most enjoyable affair from start to finish. The program put on by a number of High School Girls, styling themselves "The Macleod Follies," was a most pleasant surprise. The young ladies acted their various parts to perfection and there was not a slow moment from start to finish. The Allenfields Orchestra was on hand and their playing was greatly appreciated. A raffle for a gaudy colored blanket drew several dollars from their hiding places, the winning number being drawn from a hat by little Miss Johnson. Mr. J. C. Corrigan held the winning ticket. The proceeds of the concert and raffle amounted to just over $50, and this goes towards the "Hay Drive." Dancing was indulged in at the conclusion of the concert. Supper was served at midnight and the dance broke up about 3 a.m. The attendance was representative of the whole district. The following is the program as supplied by the High School Girls:

1. Selection by the Orchestra.
2. Dialogue, "Trouble at Satterlys." Characters: Lillie Hicks, Miss Petunia; Olive Lambert, Slim Chance; Frances Wall, Miss Paprika; Annie MacDonald, Noodles Failure; Mary Brewster, Miss Eureka; Peggy Beattie, Hezekiah Accident; Nellie Drinkwater, pianist. This was a most amusing number very charmingly portrayed.

3. Song, "My Man," very ably rendered by the entire company.
4. Song, by Donald White, in his usual happy manner.

5. Introduction. The Macleod High School Girls were presented to the audience and introduced by name. This should have been No. 2 on the program, but wasn't.

6. Song, "Hortense," by the bunch. Encored.

7. Club Swinging, by Frances Wall. This number was loudly applauded and was deserving of it.

8. Selection, Violin Solo, by Mr. Don White, exceedingly well rendered, showing the result of much hard study. Miss Janet White accompanied on the organ.

9. Song, "Peggy O'Neil," by six girls, three of whom impersonated boys. A fetching number.

10. Song, "Nobody's Darling," by Misses Annie McDonald and Lily Hicks. The title was all wrong—at least the lads in the audience expressed that opinion.

11. Song, "Ma," by the Follies. Something snappy.

12. Butterfly Dance, Miss Julia Rhodes who danced it very cleverly. Altogether the effect was very charming.

13. Song, "Old Grey Bonnet," the entire company, assisted by the audience.

14. "The Minuet," Considering the limited platform space this old-time dance was as gracefully danced as one could wish.

15. Selection by the Orchestra.

The Truth, the Whole Truth and "Nothing But The Truth."

Waterton Items.

The house party and dance given at P. Sparling's ranch on Feb. 17th, was well attended by many friends. Among those in attendance were people from Waterton, Ardenville, Ewleme, Glenwood, Stand Off and Macleod. Dancing was continued until daylight, with everybody enjoying themselves to the limit. Supper was served at midnight by members of the lodge. The entertainment and dance to be given at Waterton, and which was announced in a former issue of the Times will be held on the evening of Feb. 27th. A large crowd is looked for.

Mr. N. Wyard and T. Heard are busy sawing wood for next summer use, as are some others who are fortunate enough to have some river bottom land.

Mr. A. Houle is a visitor in Waterton this week at Doyle Bros.

A number of the farmers are taking advantage of the good roads and good prices to haul the balance of their wheat.

Mr. Maloney has accepted nomination as a candidate to contest in District No. 2 in the Municipality of Bright.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

A few thoughts gathered from the reading of God's word.

Many have been blessed and have found a peace such as they "never knew before," during the special meetings that have just ended, and are now glad to acknowledge Jesus as "the mighty to save" and "strong to deliver." They have been born of the spirit and are indeed "new creatures in Christ Jesus," and are now willing to take up their cross daily and bear reproach for Jesus' sake.

Jesus went to the cross—something most humiliating—so the cross to each means sacrifice, and where there is no reproach or sacrifice the power will be lacking.

The Salvation Army is becoming very popular throughout the world and there is great danger of the spiritual side being lost, many will say, nay alas! do say. Have we not rescued the perishing, saved the orphans, etc., but unless these works of mercy are done as the result of being redeemed through the blood of Jesus, they will not gain one soul an entrance into Heaven, for "our righteousness are as filthy rags." Oh yes! the world will not understand, but Jesus was misunderstood. He is the friend of sinners, and came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. Those who think they are good enough, to them the preaching of the Cross is foolishness, but to those who have a personal knowledge of sins forgiven to them "it is the power of God." The love of Jesus was perfect for sinners—measured by His perfect sacrifice. His grace (undeserved love) is sufficient to keep us.

"God is made unto us wisdom and righteousness and sanctification, and redemption." His children are set apart—separated—"Come out from among them." Christ must be first. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" is the Lord's command, so we know that "whatsoever will" may come and that salvation is not only for a certain few as the wrong translation of Acts 13:48 would imply. Doddridge, a Calvinist and a great authority as a Greek scholar, translates the passage thus: "As many as were determined for eternal life, believed." If a man desires, or is determined to give up sin and believe Jesus Christ, he will be elected, or selected to be saved. This salvation's full and free reaches out to you and me. Hallelujah.

There will be a frank consideration of these questions and any one with a question to ask or a suggestion to make will be especially welcomed.

Finding the Hero In The Child

(By Dr. W. A. McKeever.)
Assume that your child has something heroic or something dramatic within him and proceed to find this decisive quality if it requires a year to do so.

Reverse your habit of trying to put something into your child by training and education and try to get something out of him. The method will prove magical. Education means drawing out. It must not be forgotten that the more significant traits of character are racial. They are latent within all but vary in degree and combination. The dramatic is not merely a deep human disposition to be found in all normal children; it is also a great human need in relation to development.

Men are always better than their ordinary daily conduct indicates. In this respect they are like icebergs. By far the largest part of them is hidden beneath the surface. I have learned long ago and much to my advantage that beneath this manifestation of daily behavior is a vast reserve of physical endurance, of moral response and of higher aspiration, and I have tried to learn how to tap this treasury.

Much more, we must look for the hidden resources in children and see to it that these inconspicuous virtues find an occasional outlet. In as simple a manner as climbing a tree, scaling a wall, leaping over a ravine, or running a common errand, your child may exercise the heroic in his nature. The essential element is the daring, forward thrusting effort, and yourself or someone else to show the proper appreciation.

Just now, at early dawn, an eight-year-old is beginning her piano practice. She first looks toward me for a word of approval. I make it clear to her that I am watching and approving every stroke. Hence, she goes at the task with alert fingers and ready will. The tiny drama is in operation and genius is finding its natural outlet.

Again the heroic in children may be shown in the exercise of self-denial. In our haste we are wont to compel our boy to stay at home while others are going out, or our girls to do without some cherished possession. But this method of exercising our will over a weaker one is going at the matter backwards. We need here to arouse the heroic, to induce the child to throw his own will against his own desire and, conquering self, to feel the dramatic impulses at work within his being.

Finally, there is a dramatic method whereby a young person may learn to overcome the disappointments and the sorrows of life. By degrees the heroic within may be called into action.

Aroused emotionally the young dramatic performer in the midst of life's severe ordeal will learn to affirm his larger and stronger self—"None of this trial can conquer me." "I am fixed as the Northern Star." "My soul is rooted and grounded in Eternity."

True to the awakening young dramatist all the world becomes indeed a stage and all the men and women in it veritable performers while he himself plays a glorious heroic part.

Toggery for Sports.

(By Rita Stuyvesant.)

Who does not love the great outdoors at this season, when the frost is on the pumpkin and a twang is in the air, if one is warmly clad? The sporting shops are showing better toggery this season than ever, for people are going in for sports with greater "per" than in many seasons. Whether you fancy golf, and there are many who are yet braving the chill winds on the links, or perhaps a vigorous game of tennis, or skating in the rink claims many of your recreation hours, you will find suitable clothes for all these occasions.

Tams and scarfs were never before so popular as this season, perhaps because we have never before had such a wonderful selection of colors and styles to choose from. The camel's hair sets in the natural shades, a much sought after because they are unusually warm, light-weight and combine with almost any color scheme.

The tam is one of those rakish pull-on affairs, with a huge pompadour at the top, that one may adjust herself. The scarfs vary in length and are fringed at the ends, and sometimes show several colored stripes as a border.

There are other sets that show a regular hat with soft crown, and rolled up brim, and these are trimmed with worsted flowers. Very smart they are too, with one's jersey or homespun or sport suit, or perhaps to add comfort and style to one's polo coat.

I cannot begin to tell you of the end-

LIBERTY

To be free is your chiefest of wishes, you vow?

Well, my friend, I'm the fellow to demonstrate how!

If a jazzy cafe you consider no treat, As long as your home contains something to eat;

If the clothes that you buy with the fruits of your labor

Are bought to suit you, not to dazzle your neighbor;

If you never have noticed how little and plain

Your house is, as long as it keeps out the rain;

If you eat without spoiling your food by the wish

That your cheap little plate was a porcelain dish—

If these are your habits, you're freer than kings,

Who are all, after all, but the servants of Things!

I once was your slave. When you strutted around, I called you "My Lord," and I ducked to the ground.

I am free now, but mean no offense, heaven bless you,

If I call you by name when I have to address you.

I have purchased the freedom of which we are speaking

By the loss of what others are slavishly seeking;

Lords live for their honors and riches and follies,

Are ruled by their tinselly puppets and dollies;

Their liberty's less as their retinue's vaster—

But who wants not a servant, he needs not a master!

less variety of smart sweaters that I encounter these days in the sporting shops, from the clever Bramley slip-on models to the coat sweaters that button close about the throat. Heavy Angora in all the well-liked shades, both dark and pastel, are shown, and many knitted styles are smart. The deep V neck is a novel feature this season, and a three-stripe band at the hips distinguishes the latest.

Among the top coats for sports wear there is none more appropriate than the polo coat, cut with raglan sleeves and reaching to the hem of one's frock. A big collar of racoon or beaver lends warmth to the neck. Homespun in French blue or gray is also smart with the racoon or opossum collar. Many smart coats, however, are made without the fur collar, and with these one may wear the scarf and tam first described.

You must see the new skating suits for women that feature a jacket and knickers, and woolen socks cuffed in plaid. These suits are so comfy and are shown in all the wanted colors and materials.

And "Nothing But The Truth."

The new dictionaries say that "vitamin" is pronounced with the accent on the "am." Now if we've got to learn that word all over again, we're going to get something else to talk about, or else go back to the old fashioned "calories."

POWER OF DOLLAR IS EASILY SHOWN

Keep One Moving and See What It Will Do for Your Community.

PAYS MULTITUDE OF DEBTS

When It Is Sent Out of Town, However, to Pay for What Can Be Bought at Home It Is Gone Forever.

(Copyright.)

It is a rather wonderful thing when you stop to think about it what one lone dollar will do, if it is kept at work. This has been illustrated in a striking manner on several occasions by means of a very simple experiment. If you want to see just what a dollar bill plays in the life of a community here is the way to do it. Just attach a tag to it and turn it loose, with the request that the person who receives the dollar make a note on the tag as to how he received it. The result will be an eye-opener.

Here is the way it works: Smith, the lumber dealer, who first possesses the dollar, buys some groceries from Brown and pays for them with the dollar. About that time Jones, the plumber, who had done work for Brown, sends his collector around and Brown pays the bill with this dollar. Jones owes Green, the printer, a small advertising bill, so he sends this bill with possibly some others, to Green to pay his bill. Green had just put the dollar in his cash drawer when in comes Black, the milkman, to whom Green owes a dollar for milk delivered at his house. Green takes the dollar out of his cash drawer and pays Black. For some time Black has owed White, the carpenter, for some work done on his dairy house, so now he takes the dollar that Green has paid him and pays up what he owes White. White still owes for some lumber that he bought from Smith, the lumber dealer, so he takes the dollar and squares up his account with Smith. Smith now has his dollar back. Brown has been able to pay his plumbing bill. Jones has squared up with the printer, and so on, all around the circle.

What Might Have Happened.

Now, suppose that Smith, instead of buying his groceries from Brown, had purchased them from a mail order house in a far distant city and sent his dollar to pay for them. Brown would not have had that dollar to pay Jones, the plumber; Jones could not have paid his printing bill; the printer would not have got the money for the work he had done for the milkman, and Smith would not have got the money which White owed him for lumber.

This is all so simple that it requires no student of economics or professor of mathematics to figure it out. Anyone can see that when Smith sends that dollar to Chicago or some other city where the mail order houses flourish, that dollar is gone so far as Smith and Jones and Green and the rest of the people in Smith's town are concerned. That dollar will never come back to pay any bills in Smith's town. And the thing that stands out most strikingly is that most often overlooked, is that Smith, the man who first spends the dollar, is hurt just as much when he sends that dollar out of town as is the home grocer from whom he might have bought his groceries.

Now, just multiply this one dollar by a hundred or a thousand or ten thousand. One dollar may not seem to make much difference in the average town, but a thousand dollars or even a hundred dollars does make a difference. Just as one dollar will pay a dozen or a hundred small bills, a hundred or a thousand dollars will pay a dozen or a hundred big bills. When Brown, the grocer man, owes a thousand dollars and can't pay it, he is headed for the bankruptcy courts. When Jones, the plumber, can't collect the money which is due him from Brown, or maybe a dozen Browns he is headed in the same direction as Brown. And so it goes all around the circle until it hits Smith or a dozen Smiths who have sent their money out of town to add to the fortunes of the mail order men.

Buyer One Who Is Hurt.

Thus, it will be seen that this buy-at-home proposition is really a selfish one with the man who buys the goods. He is not hurting the home merchant when he sends his money out of town, any more than he is hurting himself.

Every sensible man knows that his livelihood depends upon whether business in his town is good or not. If business is not good he cannot make a good living for himself and his family, no matter how hard he may work, and business cannot be good if the business men in the town are not making money. This is a plain business proposition for every man and woman in the community. By spending their money at home they are helping the home merchant only incidentally. They are bettering their own bread. When they send their money to the mail order house, they are not only hurting the home merchant incidentally but—a thing more important to them—they are likely to be taking the bread out of the mouths of their own children.

Italy has invented a method of spinning cloth out of grass. One hopes that this cloth will not be used for the more intimate articles of apparel—it would be like wearing a crex rug. It might be interesting to know if the wealthy Mrs. Anastase Andrevitch Vonsiatky-Vonsiatky calls her husband 'Skoy or 'Sky when she's in a hurry.

therefore read the slogan that they

The time for consideration of this question could not be more opporshould begin at home and can be exemplified in no more far-reach-

It is a thought that should be taken

THE DISARMAMENT TREATY

The establishment of a "naval holiday" was the first object of the Washington conference. The five-power naval disarmament treaty is, therefore, the most important of the products which the conference has presented to the world. The other treaties are significant, and of great value in their advancement of the cause of permanent peace, but they must be considered as secondary to the epochal agreement for the limitation of navies.

The agreement is truly epochal because it is the first compact of its kind. It marks the beginning of an era of understanding. When five great powers can amicably agree to limit their armaments in accordance with a fixed program of minutely detailed specifications it is no longer beyond reason to hope that at some future time the powers can agree to do away with armaments altogether. The five-power treaty is calculated to make war difficult.

The five-power treaty is divided into three chapters. The first chapter deals with the specific limitations; the second chapter specifies rules relating to the execution of the treaty. Chapter III contains two articles which regulate the conduct of the signatory powers in the event of a war between a signatory and a non-signatory nation.

The first chapter sets the following limits for capital ship tonnage: United States 35,000, Great Britain 35,000, France 35,000, Italy 35,000, Japan 35,000. The ratio is approximately 5-5-13-13-3. It is based on the relative strength of the navies of the five nations at the time of the assembling of the Washington conference. The tonnage limits for aircraft carriers is also fixed, inasmuch as aircraft carriers are ships of heavy tonnage and therefore approach the importance of capital ships. The aircraft carrier tonnage limits are as follows: Great Britain and the United States each 13,500; France and Italy each 6,000; Japan 8,100. Submarines are not treated in the main treaty but are included in a separate treaty. The treaty provides that no warship of any of the five powers shall carry a gun of a caliber in excess of sixteen inches and that no capital ship to be built or acquired by any of the powers under the terms of the replacement sections of the treaty shall have a tonnage in excess of 35,000 tons.

The business of scrapping the ships is not left to the discretion of the nations. There are specifications which render it quite impossible for any signatory nation to recover or reconstruct any of the scrapped vessels. The matter of replacement is dealt with at length and in detail. No ship is to be replaced within less than 20 years from the date of the laying of its keel. It is permitted, however, to lay the keel of a replacement ship three years before the ship may be placed in service, so that the actual time between the laying of the keel of the old ship and the laying of the keel of its successor is seventeen years. Detailed tables are included in the treaty to indicate precisely at what date replacement work may be undertaken by each of the five nations, and indicating the character of the permissible replacements. There can be no misunderstanding, misinterpretation or evasion.

Two articles of Chapter III are of interest as admitting the possibility of war. Article XXI provides that if the requirements of naval defense of any one of the powers are, in the opinion of that power, altered by unforeseen conditions, the nation shall have the privilege of requesting a conference for reconsideration and the United States shall arrange for this conference as soon as possible after the expiration of eight years from the coming in force of the treaty. Article XXII stipulates that in the actual event of war the signatory power which is at war may suspend some of the stipulations of the treaty, but may not suspend the articles which forbid the reconverting of scrapped ships into utilizable vessels of war and the appropriating of vessels under construction on foreign account within the jurisdiction of the contracting nation.

There is one section of the treaty which might in American parlance, be termed a "rider." This is Article XIX, which provides for maintaining the status quo of Pacific insular fortifications. It applies only to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, and excludes France in spite of the fact that she has important Pacific possessions. The United States agrees to do nothing toward strengthening the defense of any Pacific territories except the Hawaiian Islands and the islands "adjacent" to the coast of the United States. The British exception is the Commonwealth of Australia and its territories, New Zealand, and the islands "adjacent" to the coast of Canada. Japan makes no exceptions, but specifically agrees to add nothing to the defense of any of the islands not strictly included in the Japanese "homeland." This article is not properly a part of the naval disarmament treaty, but it was apparently tacked on to this compact as an after thought after the four-power Pacific treaty had been completed and published.

The treaty is to remain effective till December 31, 1936, and in case none of the contracting parties shall have given notice two years before that date of its intention to determine the treaty, it shall remain in force till two years from a date on which notice of termination shall be given by one of the contracting powers. And if such

HOW WE FIGURE YOUR SERVICE CHARGE

If your current consumption last year was 120 K.W.H. you paid us $21.60 or an average of $1.80 per month for 10 K.W.H.

Now we assume the current to be worth five cents per Kilowatt or 50 cents per month in this case and $1.30 service charge to meet debenture interest. If you take this service charge for a year you pay:

12 times $1.30 .....	$15.60
120 K.W.H. @ 5c .....	6.00
	$21.60

or exactly what you paid before. If you double your current consumption by the use of appliances under the 18 cent rate you would pay:

240 K.W.H. @ 18c .....	$53.20 per year.
12 service charges @ $1.30 .....	$15.60
240 K.W.H. @ 5c .....	12.00
	$70.80

and effect a saving of $25.60.

REMEMBER

That your service charge will be based on your average consumption in the past.
That the service charge system is of no use to you unless you wish to consume more current.
That if you use less than usual you lose.
But if you increase your consumption the extra current will only cost 5 cents per K.W.H.

Municipal Electric Light Dept.

notice is given it shall be the duty of the government of the United States to call a conference of the signatory powers within one year thereafter. In other words, the treaty cannot be terminated without two years' warning, and there must be a "get-together" meeting before the termination can be consummated. Surely no advocate of the "cooling-off process" could require more than this.

This is the substance of the treaty which must be considered the most important work of the Washington conference.

Success of The Pit Silo in Alberta

(From the Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.)

In these days, when so great an emphasis is placed upon the crop failures of Southern Alberta, not enough attention is being paid to what actually has been accomplished and what can be accomplished, even on the dry lands of the southern part of the province, in the way of mixed farming.

The situation in the south is often misunderstood by many people who are frequently heard to express the opinion that settlement of that country was a mistake, and that it can never have a future as a prosperous farming country. As a matter of fact, given proper conditions and with the application of proper cultivation and diversified methods, splendid results have been attained.

Mixed farming is not a fortune-maker in a few years, as many farmers hoped grain production would prove, but mixed farming provides the sure way to ultimate prosperity with a farm home free of the worry of debt, a suitable education for the family, and a bank account for one's advanced years. Moreover, there is the satisfaction of building up a farm that pays its way as it goes along. Some farmers in Southern Alberta have accomplished this, and will continue to do this to an increasing extent.

The great essential of course is to get succulent feed and the problem is to find a cheap method of securing it. With this in view, the Department of Agriculture has been experimenting with the two different types of pit silos. One of these is the trench silo, 25 feet long by 12 feet wide by 10 feet deep, studded with tamarack posts edged on the sides, and covered with tamarack posts, straw and earth to keep out the frost. The other is an entirely open one, straight on two sides and sloped on two sides. The experience of the Department has led to the conclusion that this type of silo should be sloped on all sides.

The pit silo has three great advantages. The first is that it costs practically nothing but the labor required to build it, secondly, it saves leakage, and lastly the silage does not freeze solid as is the case with other types of silos.

The experiments of the Department of Agriculture have established beyond doubt the value of the pit silo. Two of these have been in operation, one at Athabasca and the other at Olds. The silage obtained in these is equal in quality to that obtained from more expensive silos. Steers have been fed from the silo at Athabasca for some time.

The Department of Agriculture has recently received an interesting letter from a farmer in Southern Alberta, telling of his success with the pit silo. The letter is reproduced herewith:

ter the ensilage was all in I covered same with eight inches of very wet straw, then put the boy and horse on and thoroughly tramped until all was a solid mass, (this straw was the only covering.) On the 10th of November the pit was opened and continuous feeding since has revealed the fact that not one pound of ensilage has spoiled, the milch cows are giving equal the flow they did while on green pasture and the dry cattle are gaining, every day. The entire cost of my pit silo was three days labor (one man and team.)

Entire cost of ensilage was ploughing, harrowing and planting three acres, $9; Seed, 10 pounds per acre, at 12 cents, equals $3.60; Cultivating with one horse cultivator once, $2; Hire of corn binder, ensilage cutter and gas engine, man and three horses, and 7 hours filling pit, $24; Two men and teams hauling sunflowers, seven hours, $10; one man in field loading, $3; one man in pit spreading, $3; one man running and feeding cutter, $3; boy and saddle horse and seven gallons of gas, $8, or a total of $63.00.

Just $1.76 2-3 per ton and more than one-half of this represents labor that any farm hand can do.

In the face of these facts, a farmer could not afford to haul hay more than five miles if it were given to him all out and bunched, yet none in our district have hauled hay thirty miles in 1921.

In the years 1919 and 1920, the government of Canada spent millions of dollars, the farmers spent millions more and yet the cattle died by the thousands all on account of feed shortage and yet never has there been a year in my 28 in Canada, that I could not have grown a good crop of sunflowers. I lost 25 good dairy cows, and had I known then the value of the sunflower, and the hole in the ground as I know now, I could have saved the cows, saved the feed bill of twelve hundred dollars and have had a creamy cheque every fifteen days.

I have noted in the past the fall rye gospel, the cow bill gospel, seed grain gospel, irrigation and now the farm survey board. All well and good, but as yet little has been said for the pit silo.

The pit silo has some advantages over all others, namely, no cost outlay to build, no depreciation or interest, no nasty stinking mud hole from a leaky silo, no frozen ensilage, no spoiled ensilage on top or around doors, less work to fill as a horse can do the tramping, less power to fill, no 30-foot ladder to climb, in fact the only advantage the stone silo has over the pit may be, farm decoration or a land mark for some hungry tramp or lost traveller.

Pardon the suggestion that the sunflower pit silo gospel should be preached in every U. F. A. local, their neighbors should co-operate in groups of four to eight for economy in buying binder and ensilage cutters, also to assist each other in filling silos.

I may say that I am doing what I can here and the farmers are becoming very much interested. Any suggestions from you would be gratefully received, or if I can be of service in helping an enterprise that will solve the feed question for the dried-out districts of Alberta, command, and I am yours for a Sunny Sunflower Southern Alberta.

Assent was given on Friday afternoon by the lieutenant governor to two bills, the amendments to the municipal districts act and the hospital districts act. The amendments to three acts eliminate the necessity of payment of taxes as a qualification for voting at annual elections. This will apply to towns and villages and municipal districts, the haste in getting the bills passed being necessitated by the fact that the rural elections are on February 27th.

TO A SKELETON

Behold this ruin! 'Twas a skull
Once of ethereal spirit full.
This narrow cell was Life's retreat;
This space was Thought's mysterious seat.

What dreams of pleasure long forgo!
Nor hope, nor joy nor love, nor fear
Has left one trace of record here.

Beneath this mouldering canopy
Once shone the bright and busy eye;
But start not at the dismal void—
If social love that eye employed,
If with no lawless fire it gleamed,
But through the dews of kindness beamed

That eye shall be forever bright
When stars and sun are sunk in night.

Within this hollow cavern hung
The ready, swift, and tuneful tongue;
If Falsehood's honey it disdained,
And when it could not praise was chained.

If bold in Virtue's cause it spoke,
Yet gentle concord never broke,—
This silent tongue shall plead for thee
When Time unveils Eternity!

Say, did these fingers delve the mine
Or with the envious rubies shine?
To how the rock, or wear a gem
Can little now avail to them;
But if the page of Truth they sought,
Or comfort to the mourner brought,
Than all that wait on Wealth and Fame,

Avails it whether bare or shod
These feet the paths of duty trod?
If from the bowers of East they fled,
To seek affliction's humble shed;
If Grandeur's guilty bribe they spurned,
And home to Virtue's cot returned,—
These feet with angel wings shall vie
And tread the palace of the sky!

AUCTION SALE

EXTRAORDINARY

Of JEWELRY

No doubt this announcement will come as a complete surprise to many of Macleod's citizens. Mr. Russell carries a very fine class of merchandise, in fact, too good to put up for sale by auction, but we believe you will appreciate that fact and bid accordingly.

GOOD REASONS

Nearly every merchant who puts on a sale gives some reason why it is being done—some people believe it and some don't. We are going to depart from that custom by simply stating that we have a good reason for holding this sale by auction and will let it go at that, without stating any untruth.

NOTHING RESERVED

Nothing will be reserved save and except contract goods over which we have no control. The store fixtures will be re-arranged so as to make as much room as possible.

For your convenience it will be arranged so that you will not have to wait until an article you are interested in is put up. Any article called for will be immediately put up and sold to the highest bidder.

PRIZES FREE

To make things more than ordinarily interesting we will give away at each and every sale three prizes of value absolutely free and at the last and final sale we will give away as a first prize (also free) a diamond ring. Prizes for adults only.

HORACE DORER

This sale will be conducted in a high class and gentlemanly manner and the ladies are particularly invited. We will have as many chairs as space will permit, to make you as comfortable as possible. Mr. Horace Dorer will conduct the sale and no doubt there are many in town who have heard him sell either at Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton or some other western city.

2.30 SATURDAY, FEB. 25th

The sale will start Saturday, February 25, at the hour of 2:30 p.m. and again at 7:30 in the evening and to continue at the same hours daily for a few days only.

This will be your opportunity to secure what you have been wanting at your own price.

The Agricultural Fairs Convention

The Annual Convention of the Alberta Fairs Association was held in Edmonton last week when over 100 delegates were in attendance. Addresses of welcome were given on behalf of the city by Mayor Duggan and the Edmonton Exhibition Ass'n by President A. R. McLennan.

The annual report by Alex Galbraith, Superintendent of Fairs, was very satisfactory and encouraging. He showed that 1921 had been the most successful year for fairs in the history of the province. 108 fairs were held, and he stated that a great improvement was noted in a large majority of the fairs, showing that the officers and members are working hard to raise the standard of the fairs, and so make them a benefit to the districts in which they are held.

Stimulating and helpful addresses were given by a number of local gentlemen, amongst these to be specially noted was an address by Professor Dowell, Alberta University, on "Live Stock in Britain." Professor Dowell was in charge of the special lot of University steers, and others that were shipped to Great Britain last year. His account of the trip, and his facts and comparisons were most interesting. Mr. John Watson Innisfail, who accompanied Prof. Dowell, gave one of the best addresses of the convention, on "How Shall We Market Our Beef in Great Britain." Many questions were asked these two gentlemen, and a most instructive discussion followed their addresses.

Another interesting and profitable address was given by Professor McGregor Smith on "Plowing Matches and their Benefits." From his remarks, and the way he handled his subject, the professor evidently started life on the farm between the "stills" of the walking plow, in one of the beauty spots of Bonnie Scotland. He strongly urged the delegates to go back home to their societies and not rest until there is a plowing match held in connection with every agricultural society in the province. Do it, he said, for the sake of the boys. All classes of plows can be used at these matches.

The Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, was present on the first day and gave a short address, mostly along the line of the necessity of careful financing of the fairs and raising them to a high standard of efficiency and usefulness.

H. A. Craig, Deputy Minister, was also present during the greater part of the convention and he gave a lot of help and good sound advice on the various subjects discussed.

One of the ablest papers read at the convention was given by Mrs. Armour Chauvin, who is a member of the executive, on "Should Agriculture be Taught in the Public Schools." This paper was so full of rich thought and good practical suggestions that it was decided to send a copy to the Department of Education and also to have it printed and circulated.

Last, but not least, the Edmonton Exhibition Association did the honors by inviting the delegates and their friends to a "Buffalo Banquet" on the last day of the convention, in the Hudson's Bay Dining Hall. Mr. McLennan presided and he was supported by the Premier, Hon. H. Greenfield and most of the cabinet ministers. It was a fitting finish to one of the best and most practical conventions ever held under the auspices of the Fairs Ass'n.

Doctor Dormouse and His Patients.

The trout was about to dash away on a hunt for more wasps, when the Dormouse said:

"Hold on a minute—one thing more—my fee will be two water spiders."

But the gray trout had only one water spider, which he gave to the Doctor, together with three whirligigs and one dragon fly. The Dormouse put these in his satchel, and after the trout had darted away, Dick and the Dormouse started to walk along the bank.

Dick followed, and they soon came to where the brook widened into what was a still pond.

Fan-Fin the Sunfish.

The water was clear, though quite deep, with a few rushes growing near the edge.

One end of a log overhung the water, and out on it walked old Doctor Dormouse. As soon as he had reached the end, he took off his silk hat, and waved it at something coming toward him just under the surface of the water. There was a rippling line that stopped right under where the Dormouse was standing, and a round, flat fish leaped into the air, falling back again with a tremendous splash.

A fish-nose popped up above the surface again, and a small mouth opened and said:

"Pills again. What color are they?"

The color of my scales is fading, as the pills had better be yellow ones."

"You are a sun-fish, Fan-Fin, not a gold-fish; so the pills to-day will be green ones, to keep you from getting too proud of yourself."

The sun-fish snorted, but Doctor Dormouse paid no attention to him, and continued:

"And, whether you like the color of the pills or not, my fee will be two wiggly water-worms."

But the sun-fish had only one wiggly water-worm, which he gave to the Dormouse, together with three mosquitos and one warty newt.

After putting these in his satchel, the Doctor waved his silk hat at the sun-fish, who was now swimming rapidly away. He then turned, and with Dick following, walked back along the bank and up the forest path.

Suddenly Doctor Dormouse paused and stepping carefully over a root turned around and beckoned to Dick. He then set off briskly toward a little open space and stopping again by a clump of burdocks called out:

"Come here and let me see your tongue."

There was a rustling of leaves and a large solemn toad hopped into the sunlight.

"Let me see your tongue," repeated Doctor Dormouse.

The toad's wide mouth opened in a broad grin and a blunt tongue deeply notched at the end was stuck out for the Doctor's inspection.

"Feeling a bit stiff in the joints."

Another week gone into the discard basket of the has-beens. A lot of happenings may occur from time to time. Never in the history of the world has there been such chances in scoops for exciting news. Every day newspapers are full of exciting news—fires, starvation, hold-ups, murders. Every nation seething with excitement of mutual hate and distrust of each other, made up of inflammable matter that only needs a match to produce the most intensive conflagration the world ever saw. We are raising up children to be future targets of quivering flesh. The only solution is to go at it like Kilkenny Cats. Religion and prohibition, which was looked upon as a sedative is now an irritant. Ireland is an example of religion run wild. The only sane people are the storekeepers, however bad the time, they still have a smiling exterior. They cut their profits to a fraction of running expenses waiting for the settlement of accounts that are impossible to collect. All our winter stock of dry goods, underwear, clothing, overcoats, etc., we offer at cost. If the merchants were like the nations they would get out and scrap, knock each others stores to smithereens with a regular Donnybrook of a time. No thought for the future but the relief in letting off the surplus gas.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

Alex McDonald left last Tuesday for Spokane, on a business trip.

Stockmen claim the present winter has been a hard one on stock due to steady cold and a scarcity of feed.

Mr. Sam Gillespie has accepted a position in the U.F.A. Co-operative Store. Sam is a good man and a hustler.

Charles F. Harris, of Lethbridge was fined $1 and $4.25 costs recently for operating a motor car without the 1922 license plate.

His Lordship Bishop Doran is expected to visit Macleod next week and is to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. K. Underwood.

Mrs. Renwick, of Calgary, and Mrs. Bains of Milk River, have been visiting the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. McCartin, during the past week.

The first session of the 1922 Criminal Court will be held in Macleod on March 2nd. There will be a fairly heavy docket. Hon. Justice Ives will preside.

Mr. Thomas Kennedy, of Lethbridge, was in town last week visiting with his daughter Mrs. W. J. Ryan. He left on Monday morning for Spokane, Wash., where he will visit with his son.

The Moccasin Dance held on Friday evening of last week saw a fair turnout of dancers who seemed to be enjoying themselves immensely, the music being good and the ice in fine shape for dancing.

Two rinks of curlers, skipped by Messrs Inkster and Hamilton, competed for the Cadillac Cup in Lethbridge yesterday. They each took the short end of the game, Inkster, however, tying his man.

The Stately lady hockeyists beat the Claresholm team on Saturday last by a score of 4 to 1. The game was fast and is said to have furnished thrills and excitement galore for the spectators.

A clam shell dredge of great size has been received here for use on the irrigation ditch and was taken out to the scene of its future labors on Monday last. With the coming of spring weather work on the ditch will be rushed ahead.

It is stated that hay forms the bulk of the relief being distributed by the government relief agents now. The applications for feed are very heavy, the farmers having to start feeding their stock to get them in shape for farm work in the spring.

Those of our citizens who attended the recent conventions held at Edmonton report having had a good time while away. They report, however, hard times everywhere they went and say that Macleod is in a better position in many respects than many of the towns visited by them.

Mr. R. W. Russell was elected Grand Marshall of the Grand Encampment of Alberta, I.O.O.F., at the Convention held recently in Edmonton, being duly installed into that office. This is the first Grand Lodge appointment to come in this direction and is worthy bestowed.

C. P. Marker, dairy commissioner for the province, pointed out in the House this week the importance of dairymen turning out a better grade of butter. The advice is badly needed, some of the stuff now being sold as butter would turn the stomach of a tin Lizzie were it applied as a lubricator, being the color and consistency of putty.

It has been urged that government measures should be taken to protect new settlers against paying exorbitant prices for land they may purchase in irrigated sections of the country. This matter will receive attention Premier Greenfield promised, the statement being also made that an agent of the government is now engaged in securing a list of such lands as should be colonized. This is a matter our representatives must keep a close tab on. In any event a sliding scale of prices for lands would have to be adopted, some tracts of land being more valuable than others, even when the whole is under water, nearness to markets, the natural lay of the land, and many other factors having to be taken into consideration.

Princess Mary's wedding day has been fixed for February 28th (Shrove Tuesday). Her wedding ring is to be made from gold mined in England.

The recent cold snap seriously affected the water service, many householders complaining of frozen water pipes, and a consequent shortage of water.

There was a great demand for shovels on Wednesday morning, the sidewalks having accumulated considerable snow during the previous night.

Twenty-two degrees below zero Wednesday night. Quite cold enough to suit most people. About three inches of "the beautiful" covers the ground at this date.

Two rinks of Macleod curlers, skipped by McKenzie and J. O. Stewart, went down to Lethbridge and competed in the Cadillac Challenge Cup Competition. They were defeated however, but will try again.

There was a bright display of sun dogs the early part of the week, a sure indication, it is said, of continued cold weather. Certainly the weather became much colder directly afterward.

The city of Calgary has had its troubles over its water supply since the cold snap, steam and electricity being employed in undoing the work of Jack Frost on water mains and fire hydrants.

Wheat has taken a phenomenal rise the last week, and farmers who sold while the price was low are wishing now they had been able to hold their wheat a little longer and thus reap the benefit of the rise in price.

Wong Soon Chang, a Nobleford Chinaman, undertook to jump from a moving train in the Lethbridge yards on Wednesday of last week, and hit the ground hard enough to fracture his skull. He has since died. His death was declared to be accidental.

If you have friends living at a distance send them the local paper. It will interest them, more especially if at some time they have resided here. Write them a letter occasionally but send them the home paper regularly. They will appreciate both.

Retlaw farmers will plant a large acreage to sunflowers this season. Since Leavitt, the sunflower and bank silo man visited that district, the conversation between farmers when they happen to meet is confined to silos and how to fill them. From all accounts sunflowers make an excellent feed for all stock when made into a silage.

Mrs. W. J. Ryan returned home on Thursday after an absence of nearly a month, spent in Rochester, N.Y., and other American cities. Her friends will be pleased to learn that she has quite recovered from the effects of the recent operation which was performed by Mayo Brothers. "Johnny" was wearing an expansive smile on Friday morning, her return being quite unexpected. A letter written by her from Minneapolis announcing her intended return to Macleod was received here the day following her return.

Wednesday, February 15, was a memorable one for the members of the A. F. and A. M. in Macleod, it being the anniversary of the first meeting of the Macleod chapter, the old list of charter members was brought out and read. The only living members of this list now in Macleod are Robert Patterson and Charles Reach. At the time the lodge was formed there were some twenty members. Some have gone to the Grand Lodge, others have removed to other parts of the country. Visiting brethren from Lethbridge and Coleman were present to help celebrate the occasion, and some seventy-five sat down to a sumptuous repast, after which a pleasant evening was spent in music and song. All the old songs were sung by many who are not singing for public demonstrations.

Considering the condition of the roads in the various parts of the province. The tax on all light motor cars ought not to exceed $5 per annum, and running up to say, $10 for the very heavy cars. Just across the line the lighter cars get off with a $2.50 tax while in some states in the Union $5 will purchase a plate good for three years. This high tax we are being called upon to pay seems to have been imposed because there has never been a holler.

The death of the Rev. Wellington Bridgman is announced in a recent Winnipeg paper. The Rev. gentleman's death closely followed an operation he had undergone. He was born in 1853, and was therefore 63 years of age. He came west 40 years ago, being in charge of the Macleod church in 1889 and for some time afterward, following the Rev. John McLean. Like the late Rev. Father Lacombe, he was loved and respected by people of all shades of religion. When the writer of this was about to build his first home in Macleod the Rev. gentleman turned out with pick and shovel and helped dig the cellar, afterwards helping with saw and hammer in the erection of the house. There are several of the old timers still living in Macleod who have every reason to remember his kindness and goodness of heart. Peace be to his ashes.

The Macleod Armories presented a festive scene when the balloon dance given by the 93rd Battery C.F.A., last Tuesday evening, took place. The drill hall was prettily decorated with flags and balloons. The main feature of the evening was the "watch your step dances" in which each lady fastened a colored balloon to her ankle and endeavored to keep it intact while she danced. A handsome prize was awarded to the lady who was successful for the greatest length of time. The prize was won by Mrs. Dilatash after many narrow escapes. A dainty supper was served at midnight, after which dancing was resumed. In spite of the inclement weather a large crowd was present and all report having enjoyed themselves to the utmost. The music furnished by the Double K K Orchestra was of a very high order and added much to the guests' enjoyment.

Mrs. John E. Johnston wishes to announce she has re-opened her music class again and is taking pupils in Pianoforte—playing, technique and theory. For terms apply Box 49 or 123 20th Street. 51-1tp
